Jay Johnson

Jay Johnson, the former star of the television sitcom "Soap" is considered technically one of the best ventriloquists ever. The illusion of life that he creates on stage has to be seen live to be believed.

The myth that ventriloquists are possessed with a dual personality could be true about Jay. He has the rare ability to combine entertainment with business sense. He sees his audience as the customer and his act as the product – adapting the product to meet the needs of the market. He understands the "show business" and the business audience.

Although known mostly for his performance on the controversial show "Soap," Jay Johnson has been involved in other television shows as well. He has been a guest star on many sit-coms – both as a ventriloquist and as an actor. He has written and produced network and cable variety shows and hosted two syndicated television series as well as a five-year series of comedy specials for a hardware company.
